

Bats of the Hassayampa River Preserve 2020

Matt Haberkorn
Phoenix College Bioscience Department
matt.haberkorn@phoenixcollege.edu
matt.a.haberkorn@gmail.com
Prepared for Maricopa County Regional Parks

Hassayampa bats

- No complete surveys in the past
- Unknown what species are present
- Not known when or how bats use the preserve

Research questions

- What species?
- How many or how active of each species?
- What is seasonal use of preserve?

Data collection

- Anabat express ultrasonic recorder
- 366 nights, sunset to sunrise recording
- Located in Cottonwood, Mesquite open woodland
- Echolocation calls identified to species with Kaleidoscope Pro software
- Each species call verified manually

Habitat

- Upper Sonoran Desert riparian habitat
- Perennial stream and pond
- Cottonwood, willow, mesquite woodland
- Surrounded by Sonoran Desert
- Relatively little development

Species identified

17 verified species

Most common species:

- Cave Myotis
- Mexican Free-Tailed
- Big Brown Bat
- Silver Haired Bat
- Western Small-Footed Myotis

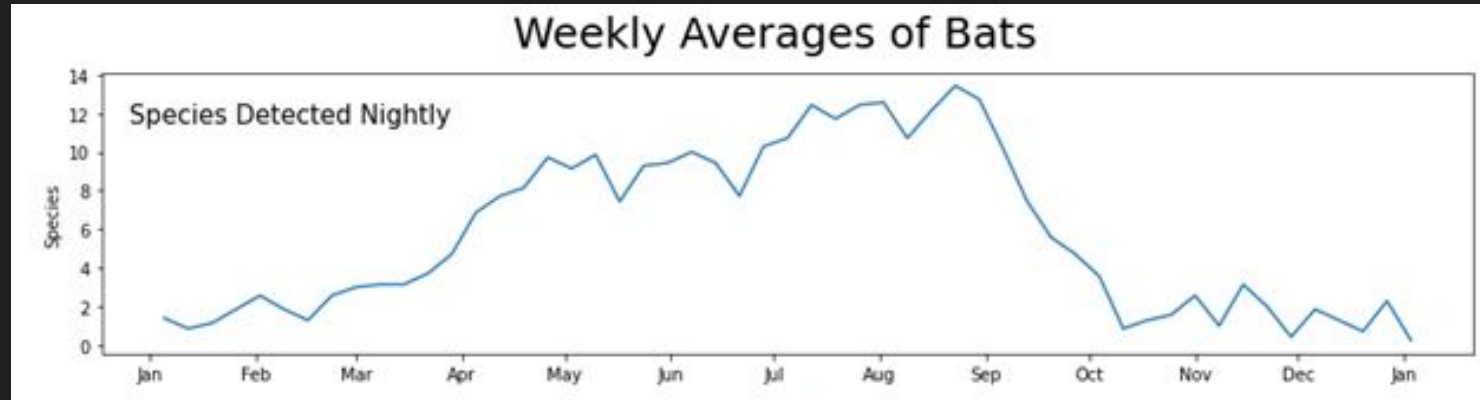

Species of interest

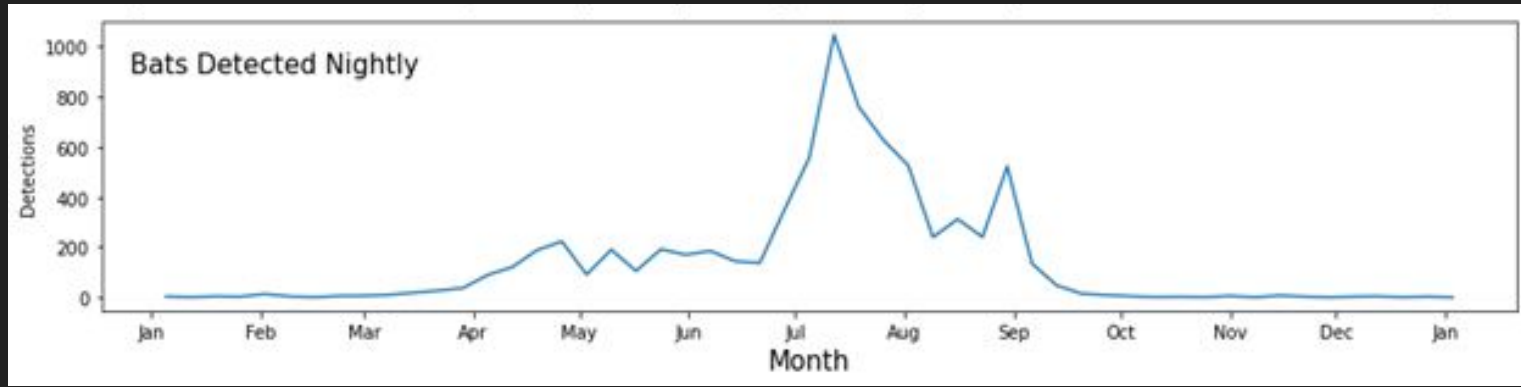

- Townsend's Big Eared Bat (vulnerable)
- Western Red Bat (sensitive)
- Western Yellow Bat (sensitive)

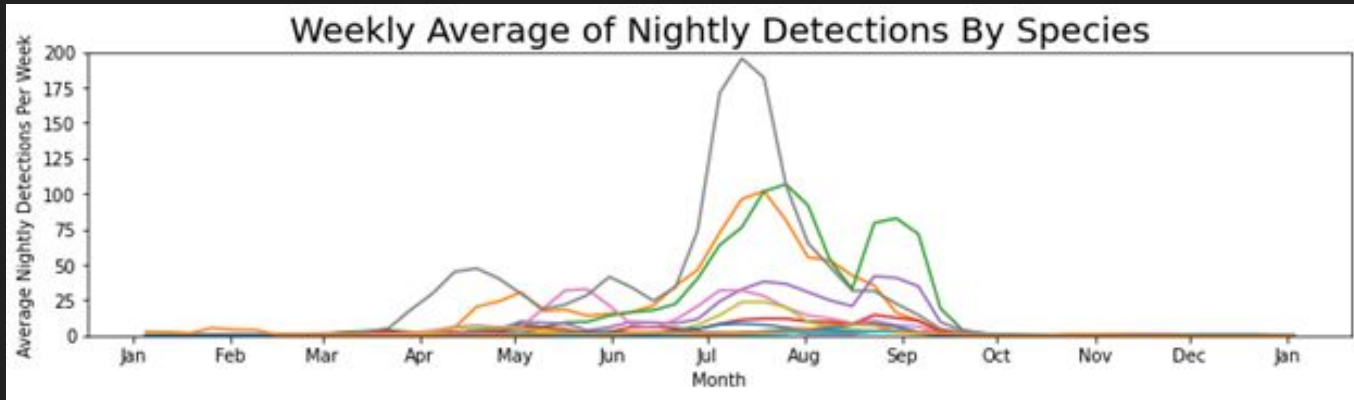

Seasonal species diversity

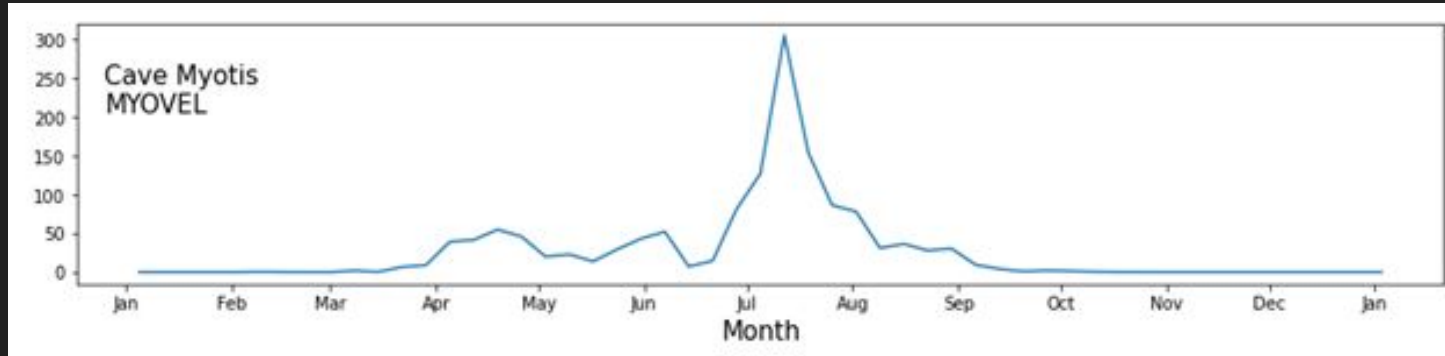

Seasonal bat activity

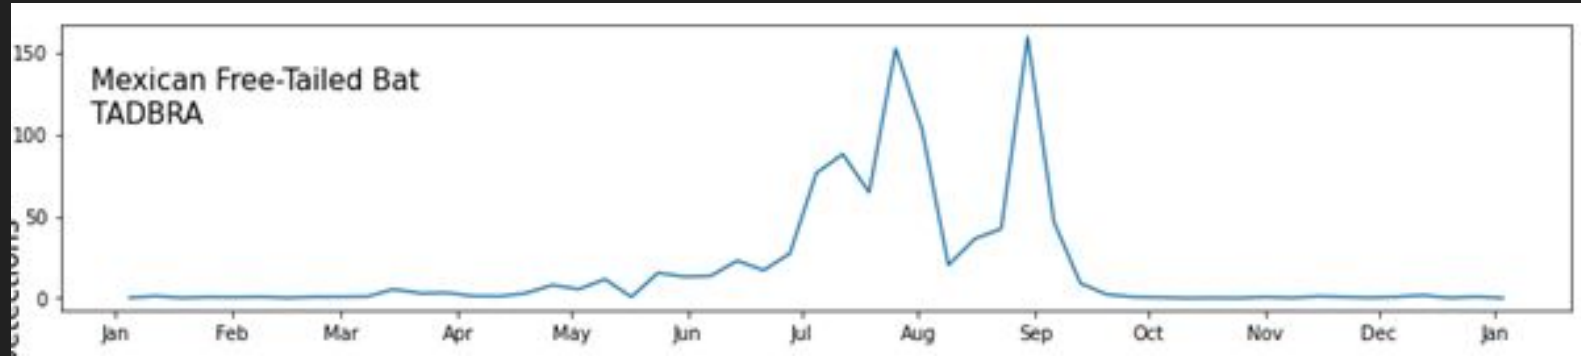

Seasonal bat activity

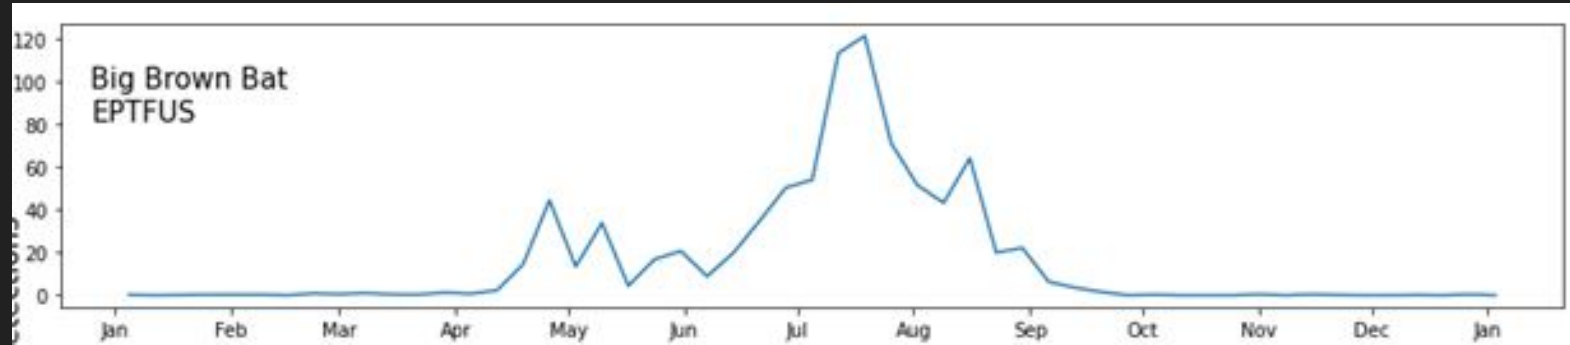

Cave Myotis

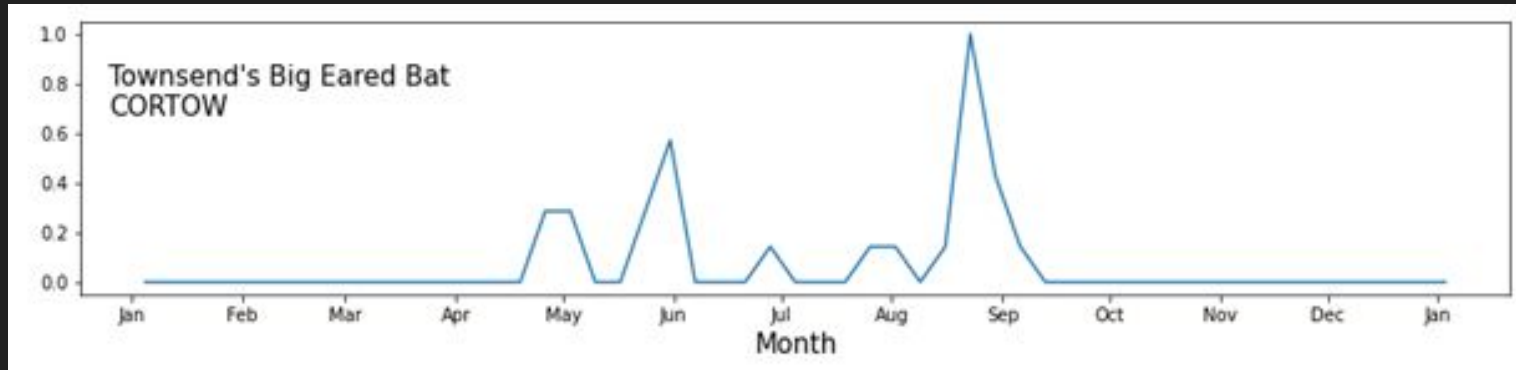

Mexican Free-Tailed Bat

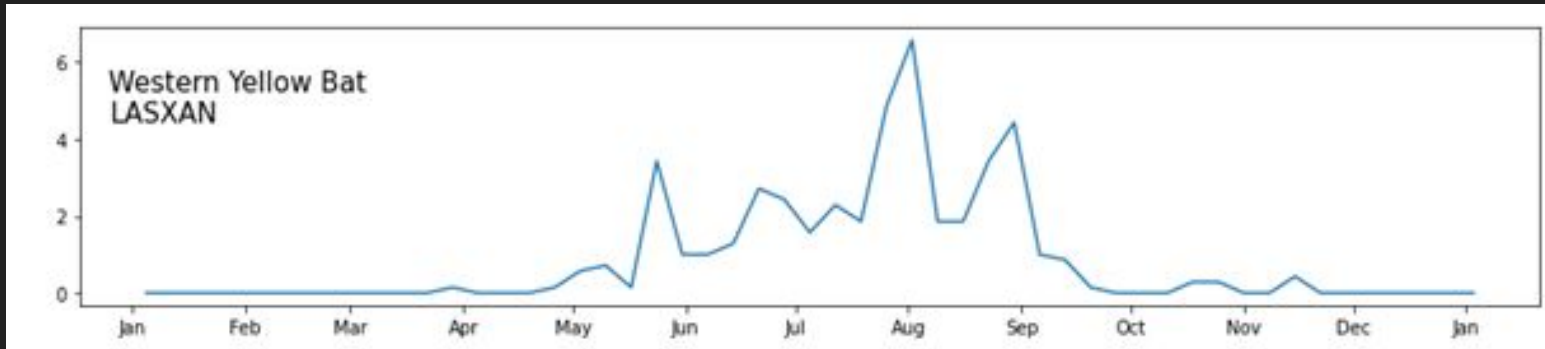

Big Brown Bat

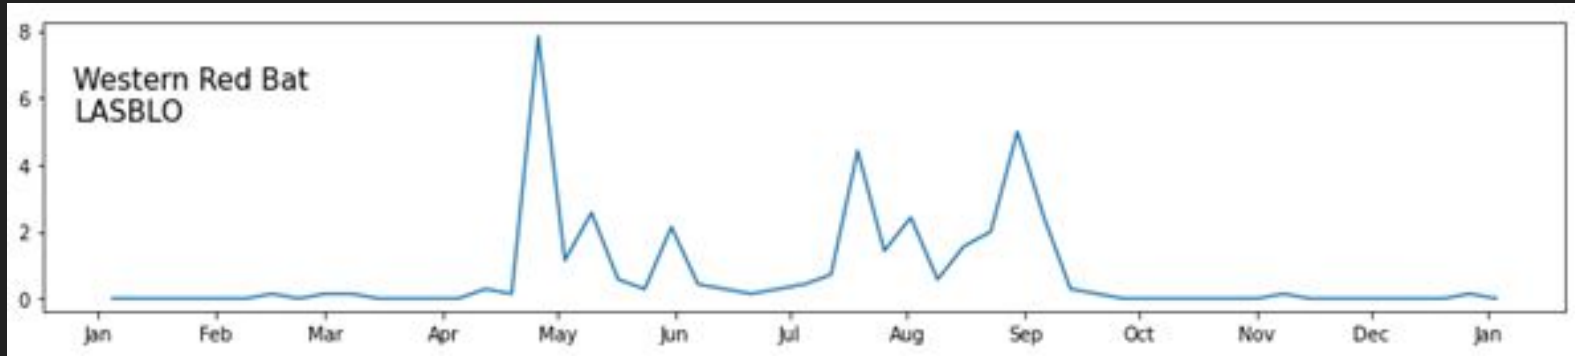

Townsend's Big Eared Bat

Western Yellow Bat

Western Red Bat

Hassayampa River Preserve Bats

- One of the most diverse in the United States
- Need continued monitoring
- Survey additional habitats
- Identify roosting locations for protection

